CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — One of two Rembrandts stolen this week from Taft Museum was at Cincinnati Police headquarters this morning.

"It'll be looked at," said Museum President John W. Warrington, explaining an examination by art experts would verify the painting's authenticity as "Portrait of an Elderly Lady."

The painting and "Man Leaning on a Sill," still missing, were stolen last Tuesday when two masked men surprised an unarmed security guard.

Warrington said he "has no idea" as to why no ransom demands were made on the recovered painting and added he would not speculate on how or when the second painting might be returned.

"Portrait of an Elderly Lady" was recovered Thursday night by real estate broker James Hough, police said.

Police said Hough received a phone call from an unidentified person instructing him to go to a Springdale barn, north of here.

When Hough found the painting he took it to a South Cheviot bar and phoned the news director of WCPO-TV in Cincinnati.

Police were informed of the find and Warrington confirmed the painting as one of the missing Rembrandts.

Warrington said the recovered painting has a slight scratch in the lower left midsection but is not very noticeable.

It was appraised by an insurance firm 11 years ago at $80,000. The other painting was valued at that time at $250,000 but art experts say both works could now bring $1 million each.

Find Bodies From Ship In Pacific

VICTORIA, B.C. (AP) — The bodies of 27 crewmen from the sunken freighter Oriental Monarch were found Thursday night, the Canadian Search and Rescue Headquarters said early today.

The bodies were found 15 miles east of the spot where the 10,051-ton ship is believed to have gone down. The bodies were floating within a 500-yard radius of each other, a spokesman said.

The search for the 13 crewmen still missing was continuing, the spokesman added. The crew was predominantly Taiwanese and Filipino.

The bodies, all wearing life jackets, were spotted by a United States Coast Guard Hercules search plane, which then directed the Coast Guard Cutter Boutwell to the area. There were no immediate identifications of the men.

Searchers also continued to look for the freighter's two remaining lifeboats.

The spokesman said it was extremely doubtful that anyone could have survived for long in the 30-foot waves and chilling waters of the North Pacific.

The Oriental Monarch, registered to Trans-Pacific Lines Inc. of Monrovia, Liberia, was out of Portland, Ore., bound for Japan with American grain. It sent out distress messages late Tuesday before it sank in wild seas 550 miles northwest of this Vancouver Island city.

remaining in the taxpayer."

The deed, dated a year before the tax return, declares that:

"While Nixon is President, no one can have access to the donated papers without his written permission. Nixon's deed also reserved him 'the right and power at any time during his lifetime to modify or remove this restriction ...'"

"If a Nixon library is established, the papers are to be transferred there as soon as practicable."

In denying The Associated Press access to some of the papers, on March an aide wrote:

"As you know, the documents are from President Nixon's private vice presidential papers which he may make available at a future date by depositing them in a presidential library...."

The letter, signed by Richard C. Tufaro, then on the staff of the National Security Council, also said the decision against permitting access to the documents was not based on any need for security classification.

Tufaro, now a New York lawyer, said the letter was cleared by the office of the White House counsel, then John W. Dean III.

Kissinger Urges Break With Past

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The first Arab-Israeli peace conference in the 25-year existence of the Jewish state opened today with Henry A. Kissinger calling on the two sides "to break the shackles of the past and to create at last a new hope for the future."

Kissinger, the American secretary of state, spoke after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko accused Israel of creating an intolerable situation in the Middle East and warned that "the Arab cause" had the full support of the Soviet Union. Kissinger and Gromyko are the conference cochairmen.

The historic conference opened 40 minutes late with the chief antagonists, Israel and Egypt, at opposite sides of a seven-table circle. A television hookup carried the opening session to all West European countries, Israel, Romania, Algeria and Tunisia, and the highlights were taped for broadcast in Eastern Europe. "We do not embark on these talks with false expectations," said Kissinger. "In the months ahead we will know success and I dare say we will know deadlock and perhaps despair."

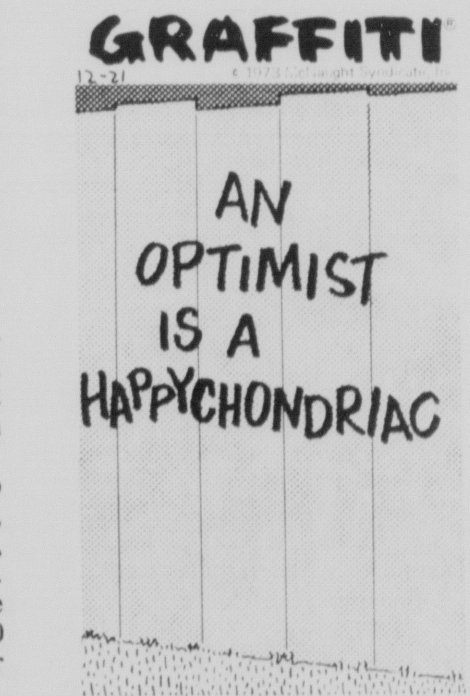

"Let us all resolve here today that we will overcome hatred," Gromyko warned that "the fire of war in the Middle East may flare up at any moment."

"Any delays in obtaining a settlement could be dangerous," he declared.

Egypt's foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy, indicated one of the deadlocks that Kissinger predicted. He insisted that Israel must pull back from all territory occupied during the 1967 Six Day War including Arab East Jerusalem. Israel has said repeatedly that it would not give up all the captured territory and that it would never relinquish East Jerusalem, which Jordan seized in the 1948 war.

Restrictions on access to the donated papers of prominent Americans are common, in some cases for security, in others for privacy. Many of the papers of past presidents remain sealed.

The Nixon gift is rendered more complex by the fact that he had the papers appraised and has been deducting their value from his income taxes.

The late President Lyndon B. Johnson apparently also claimed tax deductions for some papers he gave the government, and a number of other former government officials have done the same.

There are detailed restrictions on access to the Johnson papers also, but since his tax returns have never been disclosed it is not known how he described the gift to the Internal Revenue Service.

Nixon has made his tax returns public and has asked a congressional committee to determine whether he was entitled to the deduction for the papers gift.

The papers were transported to the National Archives on March 26 and 27, 1969. The deed was dated March 27, 1969 but was not turned over to the General Services Administration until April 10, 1970.

The opening session lasted for an hour and 25 minutes, then the conference took a three-hour lunch break.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban was to speak at the afternoon session.

United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim presided at the ceremonial opening session and told the delegations there was no need to remind them "of the concern of the international community for the success of our deliberations."

Waldheim said their goal must be a "just and durable peace in the Middle East."

"None of us, I know, underestimates the difficulties of the talks ahead," he said. "But the very fact of this conference and the willingness of the governments concerned to respond to this new effort to find a just and lasting settlement is a source of encouragement and hope for all mankind."

The seven tables around the council chamber were assigned to Israel, Egypt, Jordan, Syria, the United States, the Soviet Union and the United Nations.

Syria is boycotting the conference, and its table was empty. But a correspondent in Geneva for Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that Egypt, Jordan and Israel "later might be joined by other delegations, above all, the Syrian delegation."

As the Middle East peace conference opened in the Palace of Nations, indications were that the real bargaining would not begin until January despite Egyptian demands for immediate discussion of a disengagement of military forces on the Suez front.

The Israelis have insisted for weeks that they will have to await the results of their national elections Dec. 31 before they can take up negotiating positions. This view prevailed when Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, the conference cochairmen, met for two hours Thursday night to iron out procedural wrinkles.

The Egyptians did get an implicit promise, however, that their bid for an Israeli pullback will be taken up in January. They are stressing that President Anwar Sadat must show concrete gains soon to maintain the position of leadership in the Arab world that has enabled him to enter direct negotiations with Israel.

Power Struggle Said Growing In Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military-civilian power struggle appears to be growing behind Communist China's placid facade, U.S. intelligence sources report.

Indications of increasing political tension in China have threaded through reports reaching here over the past several months.

Much of this is believed to stem from the maneuvering of opposing factions for dominance in the event of Mao Tse-tung's death. Mao, the Chinese Communist Party chairman, is nearly 80.

Among its more recent moves, the radical wing of the party reportedly has been working to erode the political strength of the army, which controls many of the key posts in China's provinces.

As a counterweight to the army, radical leaders in Peking and Shanghai have been pushing for a major expansion of the civilian militia in China's cities, U.S. sources said.

Professional military officers are reported resisting any major strengthening of the urban militia, which could be a powerful weapon for the radical party element in a duel for control.

But the officers may be in a losing fight because the radicals are said to be backed by Mao and led by Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, among others.

By tradition, the Peoples Liberation Army (PLA) was kept out of Communist China's domestic politics until the cultural revolution of 1966. The party always believed that civilians should "rule the gun."

However, the Cultural Revolution, fostered by Mao to purge revisionist elements, spawned such chaos that the PLA was called on to restore order and its officers became dominant in most provincial committees.

Although the PLA's political position has slipped in the past few years, it remains strong.

The radicals, who oppose rapid liberalization in Chinese politics and society, are said to be taking aim at Premier Chou En-lai, a pragmatist and a moderate described as favoring faster change even if it departs somewhat from orthodoxy.

So far, there have been no open moves against Chou. But reports speak of under-the-surface attacks, including a campaign of criticism of Confucianism that U.S. analysts interpret as a round-about thrust at Chou.

The 75-year-old Chou has managed to survive until now by what U.S. specialists have called his ability to remain on working terms with differing factions of the party.

There was some belief that he might run into trouble from the radicals at the 10th party congress last summer, but he emerged without apparent loss.

Nonetheless, the radicals apparently have not given up, and some U.S. officials wonder whether the agile Chou can survive a sustained campaign against him.

GM Recalls 780,000 Big Autos

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors is recalling more than 780,000 of their 1974 model cars and trucks because of a defect in the front suspension systems that could cause a steering pull to one side.

GM said Thursday the recall is its largest such campaign in two years. In December 1971, GM called back 6.9 million vehicles for possibly defective engine mounts.

The latest defect was made public Tuesday by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, but GM denied his charges that it had delayed unnecessarily in reporting the safety-related defect.

The problem involves the system's upper control arm assembly in most large-sized Chevrolet, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac models.

GM said some of the nuts holding the control arm inner bushing in place on the cars could work loose and come off after a car has been driven "for some time."

If the control arm is about to fall, GM said, there is often a tell-tale squeak or rattling noise when the brakes are applied. And a steering pull to the right or the left would result if the arm were to break, GM said.

The defective nuts can be replaced by any GM dealer, at no cost to car owners, after supplies are made available in mid-January.

The cars subject to recall are most intermediate and large sized autos built before the last week in October. Also involved are Chevrolet El Camino and GMC Sprint model pick-up trucks, vehicles built on an intermediate-size passenger car chassis.

Southeast Hit By Bad Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A topsy-turvy weather pattern brought snow and freezing temperatures to much of the Southeast today and heavy rains and flash-flood warnings to the storm-weary Northeast.

Forecasters said that rivers and streams in New England and parts of New York were rising rapidly from the downpour that dropped nearly 2 inches of rain in some parts of the region. The heavy rain came on the heels of an snow and ice storm that knocked out heat and electricity to thousands in the area Monday.

The rain promised to slow efforts to return power to thousands still without it in Connecticut, hardest hit by the earlier storm.

Meanwhile, a storm that buried sections of the Midwest under foot-deep snows, pushed winter into the usually balmy Southeast. Snow of the one and two-inch variety were reported in sections of Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and the Carolinas.

In the usually mild San Antonio, Tex., the thermometer dropped to 17, breaking a record set in 1937. In Texas' semitropical lower Rio Grande Valley, citrus growers eyed temperatures dropping into the upper 20s with alarm. Crop damage can be sustained if the temperature remains below 26 for more than five hours.

The Midwest was still digging out from a heavy stormstorm Wednesday. Icy highways snarled traffic and caused hundreds of minor accidents in the St. Louis area. The thermometer plunged to zero overnight, following the city's fifth heaviest snowfall of the century.

Highway flooding was reported in New Jersey from the heavy rains. The rains, accompanied with mild temperatures, melted the snow and ice from the previous storm and heightened the flood threat to the Northeast.

AEC Charges Dow Chemical Failed To Report Leakage

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says the Dow Chemical Co. has failed to report two leaks of radioactive materials in the past five years.

Dow manufactures nuclear weapon parts at its Rocky Flats plant.

One of the accidental leaks occurred in 1968, and the second occurred earlier this year when tritium from Rocky Flats made its way into Broomfield's water supply reservoir, AEC investigators said in a report Thursday.

The AEC also charged that Dow failed to install an alarm system to detect possible future leaks of radioactive substances.

The government said that a quantity of tritium, a form of radioactive hydrogen, was released accidentally through a smokestack at Rocky Flats in 1968 but was not reported by Dow. It did not endanger the nearby population, the government said.

More tritium escaped last spring through water waste at the plant, and got into a stream which eventually flows into the nearby Broomfield reservoir. It contaminated the water but not at a dangerous level and was ordered cleaned up by the state, the report said.

Dow's new plant manager, William B. Colston, said the leak last spring had induced a greater awareness of problems at Dow among company officials.

"The tritium thing was bad in that it shouldn't have happened at all, but it was good in that it showed us our problems. It gave the system a very good shakeup and made us look at what we're doing," he said.

Find Strings Attached To Nixon Papers Gift

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon certified with his 1969 income tax return that he was giving vice presidential papers to the government free and clear with no restrictions. But the gift deed restricts who can see the documents and where they are to be deposited.

The tax return declares: "Restrictions: None."

The deed says there are restrictions, although it adds that they are not intended to prevent the papers from being used for public purposes.

A White House spokesman Thursday repeated the position taken by Nixon lawyers that Internal Revenue Service auditors had seen the deed and were satisfied that the President's tax deductions for the gift was legitimate.

A Nixon accountant had said earlier that the provisions of the deed were "not considered a restriction. It does not defeat the purpose of the gift."

A White House lawyer said the restrictions apparently were not considered material at the time the return was prepared.

The papers remain sealed from public view under terms of the deed with which Nixon turned them over to the National Archives. The secrecy is not unusual in the case of papers of a public official.

Nixon has taken $482,000 in income tax deductions over the past four years for his gift of the papers.

A White House official restated restrictions on the papers earlier this year in a letter which described them as "President Nixon's private vice presidential papers."

That description is now disavowed by a White House spokesman, who said it apparently was written without proper staff work.

A Nixon accountant said limits on access, and a stipulation that the papers go ultimately to his presidential library, were not considered restrictions that would have barred the President's income tax deduction.

The Internal Revenue Code requires that all restrictions as to use and disposition of a gift be reported on the return of the taxpayer declaring it as a deduction.

An attachment to Nixon's 1969 federal income tax return describes the gift, says it was made on March 27 of that year, and states:

"Restrictions: none. The gift was free and clear with no rights

Recover Painting In Cincy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — One of two Rembrandts stolen this week from Taft Museum was at Cincinnati Police headquarters this morning.

"It'll be looked at," said Museum President John W. Warrington, explaining an examination by art experts would verify the painting's authenticity as "Portrait of an Elderly Lady." The painting and "Man Leaning on a Sill," still missing, were stolen last Tuesday when two masked men surprised an unarmed security guard.

Warrington said he "has no idea" as to why no ransom demands were made on the recovered painting and added he would not speculate on how or when the second painting might be returned. "Portrait of an Elderly Lady" was recovered Thursday night by real estate broker James Hough, police said.

Police said Hough received a phone call from an unidentified person instructing him to go to a Springdale barn, north of here.

When Hough found the painting he took it to a South Cheviot bar and phoned the news director of WCPO-TV in Cincinnati.

Police were informed of the find and Warrington confirmed the painting as one of the missing Rembrandts.

Warrington said the recovered painting has a slight scratch in the lower left midsection but is not very noticeable.

It was appraised by an insurance firm 11 years ago at $80,000. The other painting was valued at that time at $250,000 but art experts say both works could now bring $1 million each.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices headed lower today as continuing uncertainty about the prospects of oil delivery this winter kept investors on the sidelines, brokers said.

Appeals Court Affirms Decision

Justices of the Fourth District Court of Appeals affirmed a decision made in the Pickaway County Juvenile Court. Charles A. Ellyson Jr. appealed his conviction of three traffic offenses.

Ellyson was charged with reckless operation, failure to comply with an order of a police officer and failure to yield the right of way from a stop sign. Presiding Judge Earl Stevenson and Judge Homer Abele concurred in the affirmation of the decision.

I Got The Message

By JIM BISHOP

"Dear Santa: All I want for Christmas is a trip to a massage parlor." That is what I wrote. The response from the North Pole arrived yesterday. It read: "You dirty old man, you!" It was signed, "Ms. Claus." Look-who-is-calling-who-old. Obviously, she's jealous because he gets to go down all those chimneys.

That—excuse the expression—is his bag. My interest in massage parlors is academic. Just research. Within the past year almost all of my misfit friends have developed bad backs. There is an epidemic of old backs limping around wearing girdles and wise smiles.

Their interest in massage escapes me. They think nothing of springing for $20 for an "exotic spice oil rub." They could buy the stuff for $2 and let their old ladies apply it.

My old man went big for chiropractic. He was so enthused that he wheeled me into going with him. I will not put the rap on chiropractors because if you have a bone that needs adjusting, they know how to snap it back into place.

This chiropractor sat on the table while I sat below him on a small white stool. He jammed his knee into my spine, cupped his hands at my chin, and yanked and shoved at the same time. The bone noise sounded like an S.O.S. from the Titanic.

I quit. My father said I didn't know what was good for me. He said the same about creamed tripe. The lady who massaged my back was a ringier for Bull Montana. I could forgive the busted nose, but not the prognathous jaw.

That was some time ago. Most of the chiropractors—as I understand it, are still using hulking nurses with plunger lips. The massage parlor has emerged as spurious competition. In New York, for example, most of the "Ha-Ha Health Clubs" employ gorgeous girls who are ill-equipped for rigorous work.

They have been known to become so exhausted trying to restore vigor to muscles that they are forced to remove their clothing to breathe, so to speak. The flabby old gaffers who patronize these places often evince more interest in the muscles of the masseuse than their own.

One of my golf partners endures a Chinese bubble bath once a week. It must be painful because, when I ask about it, he rolls his eyes and gasps. He complains to his wife about the sore back, but forgets to tell the young masseuse about it. Strange.

Personally, I gather that these young ladies are too weak to knead pain from a spine. Another thing—some say that the fee keeps going up as the vitamin vigilantes lie on the table.

This not only adds to the inflation which cheapens our dollar, but the patient is paying a novice who obviously doesn't know her job. She's learning on his time.

The New York Post wondered why, if all these beautiful dolls are so inefficient, the massage parlors are not bankrupt. They sent a sharp reporter, Larry Kleinman, out to get himself a half dozen massages a day and, incidentally, to find out whether the girls were learning or teaching.

Mr. Kleinman is nothing if not valiant. He went through the massage parlor wringer and emerged with a distinct impression that the girls in the little cubicles knew more about massages than massages. They seemed too weak in their knowledge of musculature—an appalling discovery—but one and all admired him for being an obvious adult.

Any reporter who is on an expense account and doesn't have a few laughs needs a refresher course in journalism. Mr. Kleinman had no fun. Signet Books sent an advance of his new book, "Sex Parlor," and I can tell you that good old Lar makes it clear that (1) He is married; (2) Nothing happened in no massage parlor nowhere.

Like Pearl White, his story consists of battles to escape a fate worse than death. He stumbled across a few naughty masseuses and, if I were Mr. Kleinman, I would call the nearest cop and have those girls thrown into the slammer until they repent.

I would have enjoyed researching the inefficiency of the "Ha-Ha Health Clubs." A thing worth doing, my old man used to say, is worth doing. Besides, what would the neighbors say if the rubber and the rubbee are working without clothes?

Laird To Turn Over Duties To Ford, Join Magazine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Melvin R. Laird is quitting as presidential counselor Feb. 1 and turning over his congressional liaison and domestic policy duties to Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Another of President Nixon's top counselors, Bryce Harlow, also is reported planning to leave White House duty early next year. He and Laird joined Nixon's staff last summer after the Watergate scandal led to the resignations of presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

At a news conference announcing his resignation Wednesday, Laird said the continuing Watergate controversy is hurting foreign and domestic policies and urged the House of Representatives to vote by March 15 whether to impeach the President.

The former congressman and defense secretary predicted any impeachment resolution would be defeated but said House members should "accept their constitutional responsibilities" and vote on the issue within 60 days after the new congressional session begins.

Laird denied he was quitting because of Nixon's reported refusal to heed his advice on Watergate issues.

As he had suggested several weeks ago when he first signaled his intention to resign, Laird said Ford can assume his responsibilities as domestic affairs adviser and a key administration negotiator with senators and House members on legislative issues.

Laird said his new job as an executive of the Readers Digest Association would allow him to travel widely and to write and speak about such current issues as national security and detente, the subject of an article he has in the Digest's February issue.

He will be based in Washington and indicated he will remain active in Republican politics.

Licking County

Rapped On Spending

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The welfare department in Licking County spent $2,006 of its 1972 money to pay bills incurred in 1971, state Auditor Joseph Ferguson says.

Ferguson said under Ohio law, an agency's fiscal officer must guarantee before bills are incurred the money is available.

The report, issued Tuesday, also was critical of the county department's record-keeping practices.

Laird To Turn Over Duties To Ford, Join Magazine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Melvin R. Laird is quitting as presidential counselor Feb. 1 and turning over his congressional liaison and domestic policy duties to Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

Another of President Nixon's top counselors, Bryce Harlow, also is reported planning to leave White House duty early next year. He and Laird joined Nixon's staff last summer after the Watergate scandal led to the resignations of presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

At a news conference announcing his resignation Wednesday, Laird said the continuing Watergate controversy is hurting foreign and domestic policies and urged the House of Representatives to vote by March 15 whether to impeach the President.

The former congressman and defense secretary predicted any impeachment resolution would be defeated but said House members should "accept their constitutional responsibilities" and vote on the issue within 60 days after the new congressional session begins.

Laird denied he was quitting because of Nixon's reported refusal to heed his advice on Watergate issues.

As he had suggested several weeks ago when he first signaled his intention to resign, Laird said Ford can assume

Licking County Rapped On Spending

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The welfare department in Licking County spent $2,006 of its 1972 money to pay bills incurred in 1971, state Auditor Joseph Ferguson says.

Ferguson said under Ohio law, an agency's fiscal officer must guarantee before bills are incurred the money is available.

The report, issued Tuesday, also was critical of the county department's record-keeping practices.

his responsibilities as domestic affairs adviser and a key administration negotiator with senators and House members on legislative issues.

Laird said his new job as an executive of the Readers Digest Association would allow him to travel widely and to write and speak about such current issues as national security and detente, the subject of an article he has in the Digest's February issue.

He will be based in Washington and indicated he will remain active in Republican politics.

Twain Missed Party

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — People . . . Places . . .
Mark Twain was not among the 400 who showed up to celebrate his 138th birthday the other day, in the Victorian mansion in Hartford, Conn. where he spent some of the last years of his life. The report of his death in 1910 was not exaggerated.

"This house was designed to be enjoyed," said William Faude, the curator of the landmark.
"I don't think it's ever been gayer, glittier gayer," exclaimed a guest.
One wonders if either has read Hamlin Hill's "Mark Twain: God's Fool," published by Harper & Row. It makes a pretty clear point: America's most-loved humorist, creator of Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, must have been about as pleasant a host in his later years as, say, Attilia the hun.

Olivia, Mrs. Twain, was stricken with "nervous prostration" in 1902 and lived for two more years. Her doctors made a point of demanding that Twain not visit her. They felt he'd give her a relapse. Jean, their youngest daughter, was an epileptic who got precious little sympathy from Twain, according to Hill. He ordered her out of the house. When she drowned during a seizure in her bathtub, Twain wrote to another daughter, Clara, "I am so glad she is out of it and safe — safe! I am not melancholy; I shall never be melancholy again, I think."

Twain fired his faithful business manager, Ralph Ashcroft, and accused him of embezzling $2,000, ruining the man's life. The beloved old geezer also found 15-year-old girls most attractive.

Judy Tyrrell, reviewing Hill's biography for that sophisticated periodical, "The Alternative," mourns:
"It is rather like being told there is no Santa Claus . . ."

A secret agent named Millie sent the following memo, which will self-destruct itself exactly five seconds after you read it:
"The energy crisis hasn't yet affected the lights in Las Vegas, nor has the influx of visitors lessened. Hotels are allegedly filled at the moment. But they are holding their breath out there. Especially the owners of the new $106,000,000 MGM Grand Hotel, which isn't completely finished yet. Hotel owners in general are terrified about what the lack of gas alone will do to the town, reachable generally by car; not to mention the cutdown on plane schedules. The number of lights used for just the big shows alone is incalculable, not to mention the lights in the gambling rooms and the advertising along the Strip and the downtown streets."

the pot. The original New Hampshire plan of simply selling tickets and having an occasional drawing for a slice of the pie is tame by comparison with some of the more recent entries.

So far, the cities have not gotten into the act, but an Omaha councilman would like his town to be first — and most innovative. The sale of lottery tickets, the councilman figures, could finance the construction of public buildings such as libraries and museums. When ticket sales have generated sufficient funds for a particular building, a drawing would be held. The winner, in addition to whatever cash he might receive, would win the honor of naming the public edifice.

This might produce some interesting names for posterity to ponder. But the big question is, could enough people be persuaded to plunk down collectively millions of dollars for an infinitesimal chance for a niche in history?

included the clothes recently shown at the Versailles Palace, as well as the Coty award clothes. Each night at midnight, Douglas put on a party at which the guests entered various contests and the winners were given expensive prizes. And each night a drawing was held at which one lucky guest was given $2,500.

If there's a recession going on, it certainly isn't yet noticeable in Las Vegas. But, as I said, they're holding their breath."

President Nixon can't win for losing. Somebody figured out that he will be responsible for burning up more fuel by taking a train to Key Biscayne than if he took Air Force One, his superjet.
Seems that he and his party, his communications staff, secretary Rose Mary Woods, Rose Mary Woods's secretary, etc. etc., will need two additional cars to the usual Amtrak train. That will mean a second diesel locomotive will have to be called on, thus burning more juice.

Congress Pushes Activities With Eye To Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Complex and costly bills on energy, Social Security, railroad, defense, foreign aid, manpower and insurance stand between Congress and its month-long winter vacation.

The lawmakers could finish this year's session late tonight or could "be through at a reasonable hour on Friday," says House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts. Congress is expected to return Jan. 21 for its second session.

Social Security could be a final-day entry on the lawbooks, depending on the outcome of a Senate-House conference set for today.

A deadlock holding up passage of an 11 per cent Social Security benefit boost was broken Wednesday by a House decision to enter a compromise-seeking session with the Senate. The legislation would raise payroll taxes to pay for the benefit hike.

The House was expected to vote today on a compromise bill designed to salvage financially ailing railroads including the bankrupt Penn Central and to upgrade train service in the Northeast. The measure is built around a $1.5 billion government loan guarantee program.

Also ready for House action were compromise appropriations bills providing $73.75 billion for defense and $5.67 billion for foreign aid, including $2.2 billion in emergency military assistance for Israel and $150 million for Cambodia's fighting forces.

The Israel and Cambodia aid is subject to passage of separate authorizing legislation. An Israel aid measure was to be debated on the Senate floor today. Congressional conferees agreed to let Cambodia draw on Pentagon weapons stocks within an all-country limit of $250 million.

The House was also set for a decision on legislation sharply boosting the amounts of federal flood insurance that may be bought by potential flood victims.

Proxmire Hurt While Jogging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A not-so-funny-thing happened to Sen. William Proxmire on his way to the Capitol.

The Wisconsin Democrat, a physical fitness enthusiast, made his customary jog to the Capitol from home Wednesday. The streets and sidewalks were covered with a nine-inch snowfall. He slipped on the ice and fell.

Proxmire ended up with one arm in a sling and a cut above his eye. An aide said Proxmire suffered a small cut above his eye and twisted his shoulder.

Signs of tuberculosis have been found in the mummified body of a Peruvian Indian child who died about 700, nearly 800 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic.

A former mayor, Luken is seeking the chair left by the resignation of U.S. Rep. William Keating, R-Ohio.

Luken is a Democrat. He was to serve a second term as mayor in Cincinnati's city manager government, but turned down the offer to run for higher office.

Keating plans to resign from the House Jan. 3. He recently became president of The Cincinnati Enquirer.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A few years ago you began a column with a poetry quotation about the courage of the blind. Could you repeat it?

Mrs. H. R. R., Wis.

Dear Mrs. R.:
The lines were written by William Blake in the 18th century. They are indeed a magnificent tribute to the joys of seeing.

"To see a world in a grain of sand, And a Heaven in a wildflower, Hold infinity in the palm of your hand, And eternity in an hour."

To be able to see again a "Heaven in a wildflower" is a rare gift that can be given to one who has lost his sight. Modern surgery has developed the corneal graft operation which has successfully returned sight to many people who formerly were destined to blindness.

This delicate operation, once considered a rarity, is now performed by eye surgeons in all the major hospitals of the world. The techniques have brilliantly evolved from hopeful fantasy to unquestioned reality.

Surgery depends entirely on the generosity of those who contribute their gifts of precious corneas for transplantation. To bequeath one's cornea is to transform someone's lustreless, colorless, sunless world into one that is filled with ecstatic joy.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1946 the expense to a community hospital for caring for one patient for one day was $9.39, according to the American Hospital Association. In 1972 the expense was $105.09.

In the past decade alone hospital charges have doubled, to the confusion of those who have been taught that greater volume results in lower unit prices. Admissions during that period rose to 32.5 million from 26.5 million.

Resigned to higher costs, the public at least has the assurance that it is getting better care. Or is it? In 1962 the expectation of life at birth in the United States was 70 years. Now it is 71.1 years, and barely rising.

What is happening to the money? Where are the results? Is it true we are obtaining better health care?

In the 1960s, concedes John Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, there were indeed some poor business attitudes and wasteful practices as the industry sought to vastly broaden its facilities.

Hospital officials now realize there was considerable duplication of services and overbuilding. The cost factor was relegated to an inferior position. Good health, so went the rationale, had no price.

Now, said McMahon, the rise in costs is slowing. Efficiency and cost controls have been given higher priorities. Business techniques have been imported from other industries, along with highly trained personnel. Some insurers are exerting pressure to eliminate useless procedures.

Compilations for the first nine months of the year show that hospital charges rose only 2.6 per cent, compared to some measures of inflation that were three times that rate.

Some surgical cases are in and out of the hospital in one day. Appendectomy patients are discharged and back at work in a week. In some areas the patient remains at home and the hospital comes to him.

That offers hope. But what about those big price increases that occurred in the past?

Says McMahon, "We'd like people to look at the hospital situation as they would another industry." This is his breakdown of the increase:

1. Inflation itself, the same malady that drove up prices throughout the economy, accounted for 50 per cent of the increase.

Dr. R. Townley Paton, of the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital in New York City, was the leading force in creating "The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration."

Since its inception in 1944, the program has expanded all over the world and has been responsible for the eye research studies that now are credited with restoring sight to persons blinded by corneal disease.

What is histamine for which anti-histamine drugs are given?

Miss D. O., N.D.

Dear Miss O.:
Histamine is the substance produced by many of the tissues and cells of the body. It plays an important role in the circulation of the blood, the body growth, and the secretions in the stomach.

Histamine is present in larger quantities in the blood of people who are subject to asthma, hives, hay fever, and other allergic conditions. An increase in this substance is also noted in people who suffer severe burns or have been exposed to extreme cold.

The anti-histamine drugs were specifically devised to counteract excess histamine in the body, and thus reduce the severity and distress of many forms of allergy.

2. New facilities and services added 25 per cent.

3. An increase in the "intensity" of services accounted for 25 per cent.

What does the latter mean? For one thing that more than half the nation's 7,000 hospitals now are equipped with intensive care units that were available to only 7 per cent of all hospitals in 1960.

Why, then, isn't life expectancy rising, or in fact, even being maintained at a level equal to that of some European countries?

"I wish we knew," McMahon replied. "Perhaps," he ventured, "it's the pressure on people." The good life, it seems, is not always the longest life.

"If we had the horse and buggy days we wouldn't have those automobile accidents," he suggested. Added an associate: There's been a big increase in cirrhosis of the liver in the past decade, to say nothing of hypertension and obesity.

A possible answer may lie in making health care more accessible and in increasing the number of doctors. For various reasons—geography, ethnicity, education—some elements of the population do not have easy access to medical care.

The doctor shortage will be solved, he feels, only by federal aid. "The federal government is the only place to turn because of the horrendous costs," he said. He spoke of grants to medical schools rather than construction of federal facilities.

"The young must be given an opportunity for medical education," said McMahon, adding that "it wouldn't bother me" to see an "overage" of doctors at one time or another.

Turk Says Fuel Rules Unworkable

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Edmund Turk, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, said proposed federal regulations for fuel allocation will cause needless problems because they haven't been thought out.

Turk said the regulations take effect Dec. 27 and are "vague in many areas, and impose demands on Ohio to meet guidelines which are often confused, and in their present form, unworkable."

He said the regulations require states to establish branch offices, but the guidelines don't explain what the offices are supposed to do or how they will be funded.

I am not melancholy; I shall never be melancholy again, I think."

Twain fired his faithful business manager, Ralph Ashcroft, and accused him of embezzling $2,000, ruining the man's life. The beloved old geezer also found 15-year-old girls most attractive.

Judy Tyrrell, reviewing Hill's biography for that sophisticated periodical, "The Alternative," mourns:

"It is rather like being told there is no Santa Claus ..."

A secret agent named Millie sent the following memo, which will self-destruct itself exactly five seconds after you read it:

"The energy crisis hasn't yet affected the lights in Las Vegas, nor has the influx of visitors lessened. Hotels are allegedly filled at the moment. But they are holding their breath out there. Especially the owners of the new $106,000,000 MGM Grand Hotel, which isn't completely finished yet. Hotel owners in general are terrified about what the lack of gas alone will do to the town, reachable generally by car; not to mention the cutdown on plane schedules. The number of lights used for just the big shows alone is incalculable, not to mention the lights in the gambling rooms and the advertising along the Strip and the downtown streets.

"The Grand Hotel will have 2,600 rooms, and the biggest casino in the world — 40 yards longer than a football field, the biggest ball-room in the world — just the foyer of which is bigger than most New York ballrooms — a jai alai court that seats 2,000, a movie theater, a shopping arcade a couple of blocks long ... and 3,200 employees.

"There was a party here at the Tropicana Hotel last weekend that may not be duplicated for a long time to come. Guests came from all over the U.S. and Mexico for the three-day affair staged by the Tropicana's Tom Douglas. They were reimbursed for the price of their plane tickets on arrival, given rooms and meals in any of the hotel's several dining rooms, plus passes to the two big shows — Follies Bergere in one room and Ann-Margret in the other — both filled nightly with 2,000.

Eleanor Lambert was brought out from New York, along with all the top models, to present a fashion show that included the clothes recently shown at the Versailles Palace, as well as the Coty award clothes. Each night at midnight, Douglas put on a party at which the guests entered various contests and the winners were given expensive prizes. And each night a drawing was held at which one lucky guest was given $2,500.

If there's a recession going on, it certainly isn't yet noticeable in Las Vegas. But, as I said, they're holding their breath."

President Nixon can't win for losing. Somebody figured out that he will be responsible for burning up more fuel by taking a train to Key Biscayne than if he took Air Force One, his superjet.

Seems that he and his party, his communications staff, secretary Rose Mary Woods, Rose Mary Woods's secretary, etc. etc., will need two additional cars to the usual Amtrak train. That will mean a second diesel locomotive will have to be called on, thus burning more juice.

Congress Pushes Activities With Eye To Adjournment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Complex and costly bills on energy, Social Security, railroad, defense, foreign aid, manpower and insurance stand between Congress and its month-long winter vacation.

The lawmakers could finish this year's session late tonight or could "be through at a reasonable hour on Friday," says House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts. Congress is expected to return Jan. 21 for its second session.

Social Security could be a final-day entry on the lawbooks, depending on the outcome of a Senate-House conference set for today.

A deadlock holding up passage of an 11 per cent Social Security benefit boost was broken Wednesday by a House decision to enter a compromise-seeking session with the Senate. The legislation would raise payroll taxes to pay for the benefit hike.

The House was expected to vote today on a compromise bill designed to salvage financially ailing railroads including the bankrupt Penn Central and to upgrade train service in the Northeast. The measure is built around a $1.5 billion government loan guarantee program.

Also ready for House action were compromise appropriations bills providing $73.75 billion for defense and $5.67 billion for foreign aid, including $2.2 billion in emergency military assistance for Israel and $150 million for Cambodia's fighting forces.

The Israel and Cambodia aid is subject to passage of separate authorizing legislation. An Israel aid measure was to be debated on the Senate floor today. Congressional conferees agreed to let Cambodia draw on Pentagon weapons stocks within an all-country limit of $250 million.

The House was also set for a decision on legislation sharply boosting the amounts of federal flood insurance that may be bought by potential flood victims.

Proxmire Hurt While Jogging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A not-so-funny-thing happened to Sen. William Proxmire on his way to the Capitol.

The Wisconsin Democrat, a physical fitness enthusiast, made his customary jog to the Capitol from home Wednesday. The streets and sidewalks were covered with a nine-inch snowfall. He slipped on the ice and fell.

Proxmire ended up with one arm in a sling and a cut above his eye. An aide said Proxmire suffered a small cut above his eye and twisted his shoulder.

Signs of tuberculosis have been found in the mummified body of a Peruvian Indian child who died about 700, nearly 800 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A few years ago you began a column with a poetry quotation about the courage of the blind. Could you repeat it?

Mrs. H. R. R., Wis.

Dear Mrs. R.:

The lines were written by William Blake in the 18th century. They are indeed a magnificent tribute to the joys of seeing.

"To see a world in a grain of sand, And a Heaven in a wildflower, Hold infinity in the palm of your hand, And eternity in an hour."

To be able to see again a "Heaven in a wildflower" is a rare gift that can be given to one who has lost his sight. Modern surgery has developed the corneal graft operation which has successfully returned sight to many people who formerly were destined to blindness.

This delicate operation, once considered a rarity, is now performed by eye surgeons in all the major hospitals of the world. The techniques have brilliantly evolved from hopeful fantasy to unquestioned reality.

Surgery depends entirely on the generosity of those who contribute their gifts of precious corneas for transplantation. To bequeath one's cornea is to transform someone's lustreless, colorless, sunless world into one that is filled with ecstatic joy.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1946 the expense to a community hospital for caring for one patient for one day was $9.39, according to the American Hospital Association. In 1972 the expense was $105.09.

In the past decade alone hospital charges have doubled, to the confusion of those who have been taught that greater volume results in lower unit prices. Admissions during that period rose to 32.5 million from 26.5 million.

Resigned to higher costs, the public at least has the assurance that it is getting better care. Or is it? In 1962 the expectation of life at birth in the United States was 70 years. Now it is 71.1 years, and barely rising.

What is happening to the money? Where are the results? Is it true we are obtaining better health care?

In the 1960s, concedes John Alexander McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, there were indeed some poor business attitudes and wasteful practices as the industry sought to vastly broaden its facilities.

Hospital officials now realize there was considerable duplication of services and overbuilding. The cost factor was relegated to an inferior position. Good health, so went the rationale, had no price.

Now, said McMahon, the rise in costs is slowing. Efficiency and cost controls have been given higher priorities. Business techniques have been imported from other industries, along with highly trained personnel. Some insurers are exerting pressure to eliminate useless procedures.

Compilations for the first nine months of the year show that hospital charges rose only 2.6 per cent, compared to some measures of inflation that were three times that rate.

Some surgical cases are in and out of the hospital in one day. Appendectomy patients are discharged and back at work in a week. In some areas the patient remains at home and the hospital comes to him.

That offers hope. But what about those big price increases that occurred in the past?

Says McMahon, "We'd like people to look at the hospital situation as they would another industry." This is his breakdown of the increase:

1. Inflation itself, the same malady that drove up prices throughout the economy, accounted for 50 per cent of the increase.

Dr. R. Townley Paton, of the Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital in New York City, was the leading force in creating "The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration."

Since its inception in 1944, the program has expanded all over the world and has been responsible for the eye research studies that now are credited with restoring sight to persons blinded by corneal disease.

What is histamine for which anti-histamine drugs are given?

Miss D. O., N.D.

Dear Miss O.:

Histamine is the substance produced by many of the tissues and cells of the body. It plays an important role in the circulation of the blood, the body growth, and the secretions in the stomach.

Histamine is present in larger quantities in the blood of people who are subject to asthma, hives, hay fever, and other allergic conditions.

An increase in this substance is also noted in people who suffer severe burns or have been exposed to extreme cold.

The anti-histamine drugs were specifically devised to counteract excess histamine in the body, and thus reduce the severity and distress of many forms of allergy.

2. New facilities and services added 25 per cent.

3. An increase in the "intensity" of services accounted for 25 per cent.

What does the latter mean? For one thing that more than half the nation's 7,000 hospitals now are equipped with intensive care units that were available to only 7 per cent of all hospitals in 1960.

Why, then, isn't life expectancy rising, or in fact, even being maintained at a level equal to that of some European countries?

"I wish we knew," McMahon replied. "Perhaps," he ventured, "it's the pressure on people." The good life, it seems, is not always the longest life.

"If we had the horse and buggy days we wouldn't have those automobile accidents," he suggested. Added an associate: There's been a big increase in cirrhosis of the liver in the past decade, to say nothing of hypertension and obesity.

A possible answer may lie in making health care more accessible and in increasing the number of doctors. For various reasons—geography, ethnicity, education—some elements of the population do not have easy access to medical care.

The doctor shortage will be solved, he feels, only by federal aid. "The federal government is the only place to turn because of the horrendous costs," he said. He spoke of grants to medical schools rather than construction of federal facilities.

"The young must be given an opportunity for medical education," said McMahon, adding that "it wouldn't bother me" to see an "overage" of doctors at one time or another.

Turk Says Fuel Rules Unworkable

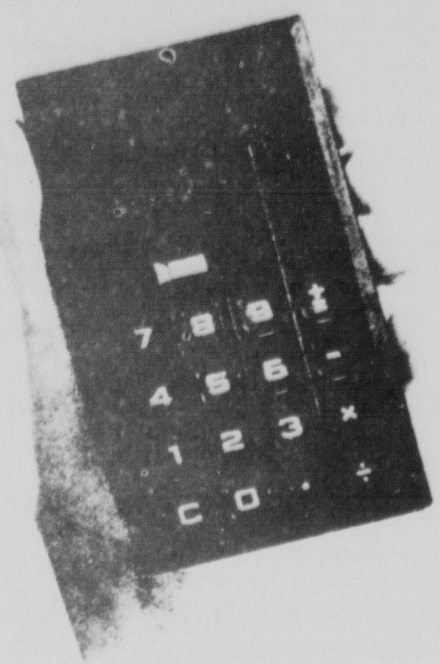

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Edmund Turk, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, said proposed federal regulations for fuel allocation will cause needless problems because they haven't been thought out.

Turk said the regulations take effect Dec. 27 and are "vague in many areas, and impose demands on Ohio to meet guidelines which are often confused, and in their present form, unworkable."

He said the regulations require states to establish branch offices, but the guidelines don't explain what the offices are supposed to do or how they will be funded.

TRADITIONAL DECORATIONS — Miss Dhel Renick is decorating the dining room at Pickaway County Museum with pine, balsam and live holly in preparations for the open house planned for Dec. 27th-28th. Decorations of the 19th century and hostesses dresses in costumes of the day will be in sharp contrast to Christmas as we know it today.

Holiday Open House Readied At Pickaway County Museum

Christmas activities are intensifying all around the town as well as in the old red brick house on W. Union St. which serves Pickaway County as a museum.

The smell of pine and balsam mingles with the spicy aroma of gingerbread boys as the house committee, under the direction of Miss Dhel Renick prepares for a holiday open house for all Pickaway Countians and interested friends.

The museum will be open in full holiday dress on Dec. 27th and 28th from 2-4 p.m. Young hostesses gowned in typical 19th century finery, will greet the guests who will be free to enjoy the exhibits and Christmas carols presented by members of the Baroque 'n' Whistle, a local recording group. Participating in the recital will be Carol Higgins, Klara Tammany, Arthur Whitfield and Jack Lauderdale.

Children will be especially interested in the old toys displayed in the upstairs playroom as well as the home and farm implements in the pioneer room. An old fashioned Christmas tree will also be a focal point. Tea will be served in the Scioto St. meeting room.

Dr. Robert Liggett, president of the society, is hopeful the holiday open house will be well attended and become an annual event.

It is the aim of the society to make the museum an integral part of community life. It belongs to the county and should serve, instruct and bring pleasure to the citizens. A glimpse of "Christmas Past" is awaiting the guests.

Children will be especially interested in the old toys displayed in the upstairs playroom as well as the home and farm implements in the pioneer room. An old fashioned Christmas tree will also be a focal point. Tea will be served in the Scioto St. meeting room. Dr. Robert Liggett, president of the society, is hopeful the holiday open house will be well attended and become an annual event. It is the aim of the society to make the museum an integral part of community life. It belongs to the county and should serve, instruct and bring pleasure to the citizens. A glimpse of "Christmas Past" is awaiting the guests.

Mary's Role In Jesus' Life Under Examination

NEW YORK (AP) — When modern mothers bewail the “generation gap” between them and their offspring, an Ohio priest suggests they consider the even more trying difficulties that existed for Mary in regard to her son, Jesus.

Like many present-day parents, she was baffled, shocked and bewildered at His conduct, says the Rev. Frank E. Fortkamp, but she persevered in her loyalty to Him despite the problems. That makes her a particularly appropriate “model for parents” in these times of strain between them and their young, Father Fortkamp says, and it offers parents a “consoling message” in this Christmas season marking Jesus’ birth.

He “was the most radical leader who ever lived,” attacking the “very roots of the society” and was a problem to Mary “as well as to His whole generation,” says Father Fortkamp, of Mount Vernon, Ohio.

Writing in the U.S. Catholic, a national magazine published in Chicago by the Claretian Fathers, he says “some faulty commentaries have made Mary’s role ‘look easy,’” but Scriptures makes plain it was otherwise.

“It is difficult to imagine the consternation of the law-abiding mother of Jesus when she heard reports of what her son was saying in public, and when she heard Him herself,” Father Fortkamp says.

Indeed, the Gospels recount that she and other relatives became so alarmed that “they came to take charge of Him, saying, ‘He is out of His mind,’” as Mark 3 puts it, but He persisted in His ministry.

Even at the outset, when the heavenly messenger informed Mary she was to bear a divine son, her “initial reaction was not joy but fear” and “lack of understanding” about what was happening to her, Father Fortkamp notes.

Again, when Jesus as a boy of 12 disappeared in Jerusalem, distraught parents spent three days looking for Him before finding Him at the Temple, only to be baffled at His response to them.

“Why were you looking for me?” He asked. “Did you not know that I must be busy with my Father’s affairs?”

As Luke 2 observes, “they did not understand what He meant,” but “His mother stored up all these things in her heart.”

When Jesus began preaching, He became “the unwelcome prophet, the gadfly stinging the hypocrisy of the establishment” and He “antagonized the law-and-order authorities of His time,” Father Fortkamp says.

“The revolutionary nature of what her son had to say was just as hard for Mary to grasp as for any one else.”

Father Fortkamp says many church people today “have missed the full force of the impact Jesus had on His own times,” and even for Mary, it took a “lifelong struggle to fully understand” the good news of the Gospel.

“Mary, like everyone who personally heard and hears what Jesus had to say, had to struggle against all the tendencies of human nature to resist the truth,” Father Fortkamp says.

“Right up to the foot of the cross, and beyond, Mary struggled with the truth even while affirming her belief in her son. And it is far from irreverent to suggest that the intimacy of the mother-son relationship made it even more difficult for Mary ...

“What parent is naturally and completely willing to learn from his child?”

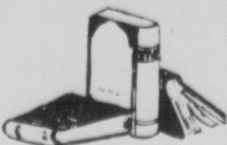

However, Father Fortkamp says “parents can and should learn from their children, many of whom have a heightened social consciousness ... Parents today need an added measure of patience to continue to stand by their children ...

“Mary, greatest of parents that she was, took time to grow and learn from her son.”

On Books And Activities At The Library

With holiday festivities and Christmas excitement reaching its climax in a few days, you may wish a brief respite from the hectic pace. Mysteries can provide this change of pace. No matter what your taste in literature, you will probably be able to find a good detective story to suit your mood. All mysteries are not alike. Each has the same elements: a hero, a villain, a crime, a patient sleuth, plenty of false and misleading clues, a big surprise at the end, and usually a happy solution with justice triumphant. Each mystery writer has his own following. Readers of Shaft will look with scorn at Perry Mason. Followers of Lord Peter Wimsey are not necessarily followers of Poirot—or Rabbi David Small—or Sherlock Holmes—or Inspector West.

Why not re-read some of your old favorite mysteries during the holidays? Or try some of the new titles just arrived. In “Gideon’s Press” by J. J. Marric, social injustices to minority groups is a background for suspense as Commander Gideon becomes enmeshed in righting all wrongs.

Colin Mason’s “Hostage” is a suspense tale that anticipates World War III. “Psychiatrist Says Murder” by Lucy Freeman is a Dr. Ames detective story about psychological crime detection. “Requiem of Sharks” by Patrick Buchanan is a violent mystery about the investigation following a strange occurrence at a swimming pool. Murder in the barren wastes of the Nevada desert is the subject of Charles William’s “Man On a Leash.”

In Evelyn Berckman’s “Victorian Album,” a woman becomes so wound up in piecing together the lives of the people in a Victorian photography album that she ends up possessed by another spirit.

For science fiction fans, “Analog 9” by Ben Bova, editor, contains ten suspenseful stories. “The R-Master” by Gordon R. Dickson is the novel of a man’s survival into the next century.

“The Killing of Joey Gallo” by Harvey Aronson explodes the gangster as folk hero myth by showing that killers are brutal, not charming. Crazy Joey Gallo, sophisticated gangster, provides the pivotal point.

In “Liberace,” the popular pianist candidly reveals the man behind the candelabra, glass-topped piano and bejeweled wardrobe. Anne Matheson tells the story of Britain’s “Princess Anne” in text and photographs.

If you wish to combine visual pleasure with the acquisition of knowledge, you will enjoy some of the new National Geographic additions. These include: “The Alps” a 1973 title; “The Age of Chivalry”; “The Mighty Mississippi”; “In the Footsteps of Lewis and Clark”; “America’s Historylands”; “Nomads of the World”; and “Men, Ships, and the Sea.”

Arthur M. Schlesinger, Jr., gives his views on whether or not Congress can regain the power to make war in “Imperial Presidency.” He also concerns himself with the ability or inability of a democracy to make astute decisions on foreign policy.

New titles of interest to hobbyist or teachers include: “Introducing Pattern” by Dennis Palmer; “Introducing Bookbinding” by Ivor Robinson; “Introducing Acrylic Painting” by Henry Pluckrose; “Artist’s Guide to Composition” by Ralph Fabri; “Shadow Theaters and Shadow Films” by Lotte Reiniger; “Color Guide to Tropical Fish” by Braz Walker; “101 Best Magic Tricks” by Guy Frederick; and “1001 How-to-Ideas.”

Don’t forget. We will be closed Monday, December 24, and Tuesday, December 25. Merry Christmas from the “Head Bookie” and her assistant “Bookies” in the Main Library and the Bookmobile!

The Republican majority in the Senate was a factor in the decision by Sen. Howard C. Cook, R-1 Toledo, to withdraw from the race for the GOP nomination for lieutenant governor, the senator said.

He called the 17-16 edge a “thin political balance.” “I think that could be more important than what I do personally,” Cook said.

But, another factor was Watergate. Cook thinks the Watergate fallout will go at least to lieutenant governor. After three months of testing, he dropped out of the race Dec. 18. He hinted he now is content with what he believes to be the relative safety of his own district, where he will run for re-election next year.

Watergate “was definitely one factor,” Cook said. “The atmosphere for all politicians today is bad and, naturally, it’s going to hurt Republicans more than Democrats,” he said.

“I can better serve the people of my district and the people of Ohio by staying where I am.”

Demos Seek State Senate Control

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats believe they can wrest control of the Ohio Senate from the Republicans next year.

They already have zeroed in on three GOP incumbents.

One primary target is the seat now held by Sen. Robert E. Stockdale, R-31 Kent. Stockdale is retiring Jan. 1 with a year left in his term. He cited health reasons.

Two others are Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, and Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria.

If they win all three and hold their own ranks, the Democrats would have a 17-15 edge. The Republicans currently have a 17-16 margin.

Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr., son of a former Cleveland mayor, reportedly is being recruited to take on Matia in the 25th District, which includes seven west side Cleveland wards and eight Cleveland suburbs. Celebrezze, a telephone company executive, has a sound Ohio political name.

His father was U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare before his appointment as a judge of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. He still is serving.

Two Democratic House members have been singled out to run in the other two target districts—Rep. Donald Pease, D-54 Oberlin, against Corts and Rep. James M. Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, against the GOP successor to Stockdale Mueller, it is reported, could have opposition in the primary.

Republicans will name a successor to Stockdale, probably around the first of the year, and the name mentioned most often is that of Charles P. Bolton, grandson of Mrs. Frances P. Bolton of

Two others are Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, and Sen. Robert J. Corts, R-13 Elyria.

If they win all three and hold their own ranks, the Democrats would have a 17-15 edge. The Republicans currently have a 17-16 margin.

Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr., son of a former Cleveland mayor, reportedly is being recruited to take on Matia in the 25th District, which includes seven west side Cleveland wards and eight Cleveland suburbs. Celebrezze, a telephone company executive, has a sound Ohio political name.

His father was U.S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare before his appointment as a judge of the Sixth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. He still is serving.

Two Democratic House members have been singled out to run in the other two target districts—Rep. Donald Pease, D-54 Oberlin, against Corts and Rep. James M. Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, against the GOP successor to Stockdale Mueller, it is reported, could have opposition in the primary.

Republicans will name a successor to Stockdale, probably around the first of the year, and the name mentioned most often is that of Charles P. Bolton, grandson of Mrs. Frances P. Bolton of

Ford And GM Win Acquittal

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors and Ford have been acquitted of a federal charge that they had a silent agreement to eliminate discounts in sales of fleets of cars.

The fleet market — sales in lots of 10 or more vehicles — accounts for about one million vehicles a year, or 10 to 12 per cent of United States production.

Before the 1971 model year, Ford and GM offered discounts averaging $250 per car to fleet customers. Since dropping the discounts, Ford and GM have seen their share of the fleet market fall from nearly 75 per cent to less than 50 per cent.

Chrysler Corp. continued the discount, and its portion of the fleet market has grown to more than 50 per cent. Elimination of the $250 discount has cost fleet car customers an estimated $60 million a year.

The U.S. District Court jury deliberated less than six hours before returning the acquittal in the major antitrust action Wednesday.

"There was a lack of proof," juror Mildred Jacobson, 52, of Detroit, said after the trial. "Concrete evidence is what we had to go on, and they didn't come through with it."

The government charged GM and Ford entered an unspoken agreement in 1969 to eliminate or reduce discounts on fleet car sales. The government also alleged the two firms pressured Chrysler to eliminate its discounts.

The automakers said they eliminated discounts because of a severe profit squeeze. The discounts were eliminated in 1970 and 1971.

In his instructions to the jury, Judge John Feikens warned that the automakers had the right to change their prices in response to market forces as long as there was no agreement, expressed or implied, between them.

A puppy for Christmas. A warm little creature that looks up at you with appealing big brown eyes as he teeters on his wobbly legs. That's something few people can resist.

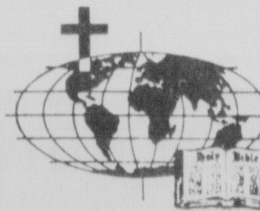

Before Christmas day is over, though, you may have had a qualm or two about this little fellow—when he starts teething on one of Dad's new Christmas slippers or on the living room rug.

Bringing up a puppy is not all pleasure. It is mixed with responsibility—and that's the way it is with most things in life. Pleasure, responsibility, work, play—it all goes to make up a kind of balance.

Going to church is like that. For home and church make up the most important balance in your life, each vital to the other. If you've been neglecting the church side of the scale, then you have been short-changing yourself. Why not make up for it next Sunday?

Reading Teacher Is Native Roundtowner

By TAMMY MILLER

"My philosophy is to make education and the learning experience an active, rather than a passive, process," stated Mrs. Brenda Williams. Mrs. Williams began teaching reading to seventh and eighth graders at Circleville Junior High School this year.

Mrs. Williams lives with her husband in her hometown at 224 E. Union St. She graduated from Ohio State University with a bachelor of science degree in elementary education. She taught fourth grade for two years in Columbus.

Mrs. Williams lived in Germany for two years while her husband was stationed there with the Army. She taught remedial reading and United States History and Government under the Predischarge Education Program for high school dropouts while living there. The Williams also traveled all over Europe during their stay.

MRS. BRENDA WILLIAMS

In Circleville, Mrs. Williams belongs to St. Phillip's Episcopal Church. In her spare time she enjoys sewing, crocheting, and traveling.

"The youth of today are much wiser and more sophisticated than previous generations due to advancements in educational methods, technology, and the mass media," she commented. "I enjoy my work. I enjoy anything I am actively involved in, and teaching definitely requires this."

In the future Mrs. Williams hopes to earn a master's degree in either reading or child development.

Holiday Spirit Invades CHS

By CONNIE FORREST

The Christmas spirit has spread throughout Circleville High School.

The Underprivileged Children's party was held yesterday. This was attended by 52 first-graders and all presidents and vice-presidents of the CHS clubs. SOS was in charge of organizing it. There was a lot of food, fun, and games. The highlight of the party was a visit by Santa Claus, portrayed by senior John Dowler.

Another big event in the holiday season is Toys for Tots. This school-wide effort is sponsored by Student Council. Every student was asked to bring in toys for needy children.

Caroling is a favorite Christmas festivity. The CHS choir went to all the elementary schools and throughout Circleville singing their favorite holiday songs last Friday.

Many clubs are sending food-baskets to needy families.

Basketball Co-Captains Provide Leadership

By CINDY SIMS

The Red and Black staff would like to feature the 1973-74 basketball co-captains. They are Robin Martin and Doug Radabaugh. "Both Robin and Doug have done a fine job of providing leadership so far this year," said Coach John Lawhorn.

Robin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Martin, 428 Glenmont Court. Robin has been a starting guard for two years. He is one of the best shooters on the team, averaging 12.6 points a game. Robin also has the best foul shooting percentage, making 20 of 24 shots so far this year.

Robin is a member of NHS, Stooze Club, and the Red and Black staff. He is also senior class president and is active in track and cross-country.

Robin commented on behalf of the whole team, "I believe that we should win the League and go undefeated the rest of the year."

ROBIN MARTIN and DOUG RADABAUGH

Doug Radabaugh lives at 499 E. Franklin St. with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Radabaugh. Doug is also a starting guard on the Tiger team and is averaging 5.6 points per game. Doug's biggest asset to the team is assists. Doug is active in Stooze Club, track, and cross-country.

Robin and Doug both stated that there have been comments that Circleville is in a rebuilding year; however, there are three seniors on the starting five.

See Ridership Rise On Cincinnati System

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Queen City Metro officials expect bus ridership to be back to normal by Christmas, following a slump they blame on the strike last week by drivers and mechanics.

Manager Edward Harvey said daily passenger totals dropped from 87,000 to 83,000 at the end of the five-day work stoppage. He said the total is now increasing.

Cows take nine months to produce a calf, from conception to birth.

Crash Suit Turned Back For Action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court ordered a new trial Wednesday for a Cincinnati man who blamed an Aug. 20, 1969 traffic accident on a defective brake hose on his new Dodge pickup truck.

In a unanimous decision, the court reversed a decision of the appellate court and sent the case against Chrysler Corp. back to Hamilton County Common Pleas Court for further action.

It said the lower court, in ruling for Chrysler, erred in refusing to admit certain expert testimony into evidence.

The suit was filed by Gary C. Hess and his insurance company, State Auto Mutual.

The court upheld granting of a Public Utilities Commission certificate to A. L. Smith Trucking Co., Versailles, Ohio, to haul farm products in Mercer, Darke and Miami counties.

The permit had been challenged by Gene's Inc. of Arcanum, Ohio, which said an examiner's investigation did not establish public convenience and necessity as required by law.

The Supreme Court said it would not interfere with commission decisions "unless they are unreasonable and unlawful." The evidence didn't indicate either in the Smith case, it said.

It said the lower court, in ruling for Chrysler, erred in refusing to admit certain expert testimony into evidence.

The suit was filed by Gary C. Hess and his insurance company, State Auto Mutual.

The court upheld granting of a Public Utilities Commission certificate to A. L. Smith Trucking Co., Versailles, Ohio, to haul farm products in Mercer, Darke and Miami counties.

The permit had been challenged by Gene's Inc. of Arcanum, Ohio, which said an examiner's investigation did not establish public convenience and necessity as required by law.

The Supreme Court said it would not interfere with commission decisions "unless they are unreasonable and unlawful." The evidence didn't indicate either in the Smith case, it said.

Better See A Lawyer

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and my boyfriend is 24. We're expecting a baby soon and are very happy. We are not married, but because we are not bound to each other by marriage—only because of our love and commitment to each other we feel our relationship is stronger than one of legal ties.

Neither one of us wants to get married, but I am worried about the complications that could arise in the future. For instance, if one of us should die, since we are not legally married, wouldn't it be hard for the remaining one to obtain the belongings of the deceased partner? And if there were a separation, where would we stand? Also, would his Blue Cross and insurance cover me, too? Would our child be considered illegitimate? If we stay together for seven years, we understand our union will be considered common-law. But what if it doesn't? Can you help me?

NEED INFO

DEAR NEEDING: You are asking some intelligent and most timely questions which only a lawyer can answer. I suggest you see one, and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 15, and I suppose you'd call her "normal," for today's world. Her language is atrocious, and her clothes are "stylishly disreputable," but she is a straight-A student and plays the clarinet in her high school band.

She has one strange hangup, which is why I am writing to you. We have two very old female boxers who sleep at the foot of her bed. Realizing that one day they will die, our daughter insists that when they do she wants to keep their ears! This isn't as far out as it sounds, considering she communicates well with animals and wild birds.

Should I try to discourage her from keeping the boxers' ears after they die?

PAPA BEAR

DEAR BEAR: How does she intend to "keep" the ears?

Pickled in formaldehyde? Cast in bronze? If there are no laws prohibiting the keeping of pets' parts after they depart this life, what's the harm?

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law did not acknowledge any of her wedding gifts and she has been married for more than six months. She says she is "sorry," but now it is too late to do anything about it.

I am terribly embarrassed because many of my good friends sent gifts. I don't know which direction to take. Should I, as a mother-in-law, interfere? I wouldn't mind helping her—or even writing them all myself, but I don't want to stir up trouble. Please advise me.

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: I would tell my daughter-in-law that even though it is very late, it is not TOO LATE to acknowledge her wedding gifts, and I would offer to help her. If she refuses, I would then write to those who sent her gifts out of friendship to me, apologize for her negligence, and thank them myself.

Marj Champion Wins Divorce

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Marjorie B. Champion has been granted a court judgment ending her 26-year marriage to her dancing partner and husband, Gower Champion.

Superior Court Judge Charles H. Woodmansee granted the divorce Thursday and awarded Mrs. Champion, 48, custody of the couple's children, Gregg, 17, and Blake, 11. A property settlement with Champion, 52, also was involved.

KSU Jury Hears 6, Recesses

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The federal grand jury investigating the Kent State University shootings recessed for the holidays after hearing three hours of testimony from onetime FBI informant Terrance B. Norman.

The 24-year-old Norman, now a Washington, D.C., policeman, was one of six witnesses appearing before the jury Thursday. He refused to talk to newsmen after leaving the Federal Office Building.

Norman had been identified previously as a paid FBI informant on the Kent State campus at the time of the May 4, 1970 incident that left four students dead and nine wounded. However, a source close to the investigation said he no longer was an informant when the fatal confrontation between Ohio National Guard soldiers and antiwar demonstrators occurred.

A member of the National Guard has accused Norman of firing the first shot on that day. Norman has denied firing the gun he was carrying, and police to whom he surrendered the weapon backed up his statement.

Also among those testifying Thursday was Terry Strubbe of Cuyahoga Falls, who was a student working for the university radio station at the time. Strubbe told newsmen that U.S. Department of Justice lawyers questioned him on one of four tape recordings he made at the scene.

That recording, made from his dormitory window overlooking the scene of the shooting, contained crowd sounds and the sounds of gunfire.

Strubbe said the tape has the sound of a single shot followed by a pause, then two more shots, then a barrage of shots and a longer pause followed by one final shot.

The whole series of shots took only 13 seconds, he said.

Three campus policemen also testified but refused to discuss their testimony with newsmen.

Their attorney, Stephen T. Parisi, would say only that they "answered all questions fully and completely."

The three are Detectives Thomas

Kelly and Robert Winkler and Patrolman Harold Rice.

J. Stanley Pottinger, chief of the Justice Department's civil rights division, said his staff will continue to work on the investigation while the jury is in recess. The next jury session is set for Jan. 7.

Pro Football Playoffs Begin Saturday

Notre Dame Rips
Pioneers, 99-59

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

They're showing a replay in Oakland and a live one in Minnesota in the start of the National Football League playoffs Saturday.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and Oakland Raiders meet in a rematch of last year's American Conference divisional playoff.

The Washington Redskins challenge the Minnesota Vikings in a battle of high-powered National Conference teams.

Following the 1-2 punch Saturday, two more playoff games will be staged on Sunday — an AFC match between the Cincinnati Bengals and Miami Dolphins and an NFC struggle between the Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys.

If it's anything like last year, Pittsburgh and Oakland will be the most interesting of the four.

The Steelers defeated the Raiders last season 13-7 in a story book finish on Franco Harris' last-minute catch of a ball that was literally up for grabs.

This year, Oakland repeated as champion of the AFC's Western Division. The Steelers, who won the Central Division last season, will go into this big game as the AFC's Wild Card entry.

Enroute to their sixth divisional title in seven years, the Raiders registered a club record of the fewest points allowed (175) and even beat defending Super Bowl champion Miami along the way.

Southpaw quarterback Ken Stabler, who took over from Daryle Lamonica after the fourth game of the season, and set a club record 62.7 completion percentage. He led AFC passer ratings.

The Steelers have quite a passer themselves in Terry Bradshaw, who compiled an 8-1 record in the games he started this season. He was hurt toward the end of the year, and the slack was picked up by another good quarterback in the Steeler stable — Terry Hanratty.

Harris, who had a pair of 100-yard games, was again the Steeler rushing leader. He had 698 yards after missing two of his last six games.

The Redskins, who lost to Miami in last year's Super Bowl, will be making their third straight appearance in post-season competition since George Allen took over as coach in 1971.

Allen's "Win now" philosophy has produced some of the NFL's most dynamic teams. The Redskins are the NFC's defending champion but will enter this year's playoffs as a Wild Card team.

The game matches two NFC coaches with the best winning percentage among those in a head capacity more than one season. Allen has a 79-28-5 record (including Los Angeles) for a .728 percentage. Minnesota's Bud Grant is 65-30-3 for .679.

The Vikings, behind quarterback Fran Tarkenton's best season and a rugged defense, have turned around their fortunes in one year. Last season, the Vikings had a 7-7 year and this year, won the NFC's Central Division title with a 12-2 record.

The Cincinnati-Miami clash marks the first meeting of Paul Brown and Don Shula, one of his several former charges now coaching in the NFL. Shula, the Miami coach, came into the pros for Brown in Cleveland in the early 1950s. Since then, Brown moved to Cincinnati as head coach.

The Dolphins, who won 17 games enroute to the Super Bowl last season, weren't so perfect this year with two losses in 14 regular-season starts.

Bob Griese runs the Miami show with a trio of powerhouse runners — Larry Csonka (a 1,000-yarder for the third straight year), Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick.

The Dolphins will be making their fourth straight post-season appearance. Playoffs are no novelty for Brown, either. He got into plenty at Cleveland and this year, moved his Bengals to the AFC Central title.

Los Angeles, champions of the NFC West, is in the playoffs for the first time since 1969. Dallas, champion of the NFC East, has made playoff status for the eighth straight season.

Notre Dame's players hit the books all week ... and then gave Denver a lesson in basketball.

"We had an average of six guys out studying each day," said Notre Dame Coach Dick Phelps, whose team certainly didn't look too studious putting the Pioneers away 99-59 Thursday night.

"They are certainly one of the top teams in the nation," said Denver Coach Al Harden. "Notre Dame is a fine ballclub and deserves its No. 3 ranking. There's no way possible to match up against the Fighting Irish.

Freshman Adrian Dantley made things happen for the third-rated Irish, scoring 21 points. He helped get his mates together, in the modern terminology.

In other action involving the ranked teams, No. 4 North Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 83-78 and Providence smashed William and Mary 105-75.

With Dantley the big scorer, Notre Dame soared to a 52-30 lead at the half. Before the lopsided contest was over, all of Notre Dame's players saw action. However, nobody played more than 24 minutes.

John Shumate added 16 points to the Notre Dame offense before sitting down. The Fighting Irish, not incidentally, connected on 55 per cent of their field goal attempts in winning their sixth straight game. Denver's John Johnson led all scorers with 23 points.

Bobby Jones scored 20 points and collected 13 rebounds to lead North Carolina over Virginia Tech. The disappointing Gobblers, last year's winner of the National Invitation Tournament, dropped their third game in five starts.

The Tar Heels lost part of a 10-point lead in the late going, but Jones and Darrell Elston helped hold off the Gobblers. Elston wound up with 18 points. Charlie Thomas led the losers with 19.

Kevin Stacom and Barnes combined

for 34 points to lead Providence to an easy victory over William and Mary.

The Friars shot 63 percent from the floor with Stacom's 18 points leading all scorers. In addition to his 16 points, Barnes pulled in 18 rebounds. Matt Courage led William and Mary with 15 points.

John Ryan had 22 assists to pace Fairfield to an 84-58 victory over Villanova; Craig Lynch scored 16 points and Bruce Grimm 15 in Furman's 69-62 beating of Davidson; Nebraska trimmed Northern Iowa 73-55 behind Ron Taylor's 21 points and 17 rebounds and Ira Terrell's 29 points sparked SMU over Cal State-Fullerton 93-69.

Chicago Loyola weathered foul trouble and a mild Wichita State rally to beat the Shockers 82-70; Mike Parker scored 10 points in the last five minutes to pace Toledo over St. Mary's of California 82-63; Charles Bailey scored a school-record 45 points in Fresno State's 96-95 double overtime victory over North Texas and Athletes-InAction held off a second-half surge by Brigham Young to beat the Cougars 60-56.

With all the hullabaloo about the energy crisis and the shortage of gasoline making things a little unpleasant, there is still a bright side to the picture—The "little old jolly man from the North Pole" will still hitch up his reindeer and make his way through the starry night—laughing merrily as he bypasses the filling stations—with his load of joy and happiness for everyone on Christmas Eve.

Once again he will be spreading his packages of cheer and good will to all. And the beautiful part of it all is that everyone gets to share—All you have to do is believe.

Sure, Santa's for children—But he is for children of all ages. His packages not only contain trains, dolls and bicycles, but they are filled with the spirit of love and feeling for your fellow man.

Christmas is just not the getting of presents but the real joy is in the giving of things—Sometimes a good word has more value than a diamond bracelet.

We have always believed in the spirit of Santa and we always will. So to all—A very Merry Christmas and all the good things that go with it.

Our "fearless" forecast—We like the Tigers over the Panthers ... The Braves will rock the Rockets ... Teays Valley will lead the Metro ... Minnesota over Washington ... Pittsburgh to upend Oakland ... Miami to tame the Bengals ... Rams to unseat the Cowboys.

Until next time, have a nice day-be a good sport.

Houk Move OK,
Williams Stuck

BOSTON (AP) — Charlie Finley, the controversial owner of the Oakland Athletics, held the trump hand and the New York Yankees were without a manager today while pondering their next move.

American League President Joe Cronin, sitting as judge and jury in his final days in office, formally ruled Thursday that Manager Dick Williams still is under contract with Finley and the A's.

Finley, speaking in Chicago, said he would have no comment on whether he was willing to renegotiate with the Yankees in regard to Williams.

He said he would not drop a federal court suit against Williams "until this entire matter is settled to our complete satisfaction."

Finley praised Cronin's decision, saying it would be the "beginning of an end to managers and coaches jumping contracts."

In a related case, however, Cronin ruled that Manager Ralph Houk now is with the Detroit Tigers, and the Yankees have no right to any compensation for the loss of their field boss.

Cronin, after conferring with legal counsel, called a hurried news conference after two days' of hearings in which he personally swore in Houk, Williams, Finley and executives of the Tigers and the Yankees.

First, he announced his decision regarding Houk, who resigned on the final day of the 1973 season with two years to go on a contract with the Yankees. Later, Houk signed with the Tigers.

Then, Cronin dropped what may be a historic baseball bombshell, refusing to accept a contract signed by Williams with the Yankees last week. He ruled that Williams still is under contract for two more years with the A's, the club he quit immediately after it won the World Series championship in October.

Finley, who filed a federal court suit Tuesday to prevent Williams from joining the Yankees or any other baseball club, appeared to give the manager his blessings after the World Series. However, he didn't put anything into writing, as did the Yankees with Houk.

Tiger Frosh Rip Miami Trace

Circleville's freshman cage squad came up with a fine defensive effort to trounce Miami Trace, 41-24, Thursday on the little Tigers' court.

Rusty Holbrook paced the Tiger attack with 12 points, Bill Mogan had 11, Brian Fath and Frank Merrill added six apiece, Brian Price netted four and Scott Barthelmas tallied two. Black led Miami Trace with eight markers.

Circleville is now 4-0 and will host Chillicothe Smith Jan. 3.

Philadelphia Flyers Defeat Canucks, 9-3

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Philadelphia Flyers and Vancouver Canucks had just concluded a hockey game, but the conversation in the locker rooms resembled the banter following a boxing tournament.

The Flyers defeated the Canucks 9-3 in a slugfest-marred National Hockey League game that was delayed for 20 minutes in the second period when both teams poured onto the ice and swapped punches Thursday night.

HONOLULU (AP) — Two Ohio State University football players will have positions on the East team in the 28th annual Hula Bowl, Jan. 6.

They will be John Hicks, a lineman on the offensive team, and Randy Gradishar, a linebacker for the defense.

One of the sports highlights of the winter season will take place Saturday when Circleville hosts an eight-team invitational tournament.

Circleville coach Brent Bell will be sending his matmen against grapplers from Teays Valley, Logan Elm, Athens, Chillicothe, Grandview, Fairfield Union and Columbus Wehrle.

There should be some exciting local action with Circleville, Logan Elm and Teays Valley all having some tough competitors in the weight classes.

The preliminaries will get underway at 11 a.m. The consolation finals are set for 7 p.m. with the championship finals beginning at 8 p.m.

There will be an admission charge for both the afternoon and evening sessions.

LE Freshmen,
McDowell Cop
Cage Contests

Logan Elm's freshman cage squad and the seventh and eighth grade teams of McDowell all came up with big wins Thursday.

The freshmen tore up host Fairfield Union, 43-18, in a game that saw Logan Elm limit the losers to four points in the second half.

Steve Bowling hooped 15 points for the Braves, Mark Skinner added 12, Eric Maxson had 10, Terry Holzschuh four and Dave Swackhammer. Logan Elm is now 4-0 and will host Fisher Catholic Jan. 3.

The McDowell eighth graders ran their season mark to 5-0 with a solid defeat of Fairfield Union, 50-18.

Dan Calton led McDowell with 11 markers while Tony Crist and Rock Huggins each added 10. They will be at Fisher Catholic Jan. 3.

The seventh grade cagers of McDowell ripped Fairfield Union, 21-6, to build their season mark to 5-0.

Terry Wright tallied eight points for the winners and Terry Wadlington hooped six.

Coaches Bowl Fund
Rejected At OSU

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University has called a halt to a program soliciting contributions to provide expense money for football coaches at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

Richard H. Armitage, vice president of student services, said solicitation of the money violated university policy. He said he learned of the fund Wednesday and ordered a halt to it on Thursday.

UC Coach Offers Job
To Xavier Mentor

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Xavier football coach Tom Cecchini, whose school dropped the sport Wednesday, can have a job with crosstown rival University of Cincinnati if he wants.

UC Head Coach Tony Mason made the offer Thursday.

"I'd be proud to have him," said Mason. The two met briefly Thursday.

Pro Football Playoffs Begin Saturday

Notre Dame Rips
Pioneers, 99-59

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

They're showing a replay in Oakland and a live one in Minnesota in the start of the National Football League playoffs Saturday.

The Pittsburgh Steelers and Oakland Raiders meet in a rematch of last year's American Conference divisional playoff.

The Washington Redskins challenge the Minnesota Vikings in a battle of high-powered National Conference teams.

Following the 1-2 punch Saturday, two more playoff games will be staged on Sunday — an AFC match between the Cincinnati Bengals and Miami Dolphins and an NFC struggle between the Los Angeles Rams and Dallas Cowboys.

If it's anything like last year, Pittsburgh and Oakland will be the most interesting of the four.

The Steelers defeated the Raiders last season 13-7 in a story book finish on Franco Harris' last-minute catch of a ball that was literally up for grabs.

This year, Oakland repeated as champion of the AFC's Western Division. The Steelers, who won the Central Division last season, will go into this big game as the AFC's Wild Card entry.

Enroute to their sixth divisional title in seven years, the Raiders registered a club record of the fewest points allowed (175) and even beat defending Super Bowl champion Miami along the way.

Southpaw quarterback Ken Stabler, who took over from Daryle Lamonica after the fourth game of the season, and set a club record 62.7 completion percentage. He led AFC passer ratings.

The Steelers have quite a passer themselves in Terry Bradshaw, who compiled an 8-1 record in the games he started this season. He was hurt toward the end of the year, and the slack was picked up by another good quarterback in the Steeler stable — Terry Hanratty.

Harris, who had a pair of 100-yard games, was again the Steeler rushing leader. He had 698 yards after missing two of his last six games.

The Redskins, who lost to Miami in last year's Super Bowl, will be making their third straight appearance in post-season competition since George Allen took over as coach in 1971.

Allen's "Win now" philosophy has produced some of the NFL's most dynamic teams. The Redskins are the NFC's defending champion but will enter this year's playoffs as a Wild Card team.

The game matches two NFC coaches with the best winning percentage among those in a head capacity more than one season. Allen has a 79-28-5 record (including Los Angeles) for a .728 percentage. Minnesota's Bud Grant is 65-30-3 for .679.

The Vikings, behind quarterback Fran Tarkenton's best season and a rugged defense, have turned around their fortunes in one year. Last season, the Vikings had a 7-7 year and this year, won the NFC's Central Division title with a 12-2 record.

The Cincinnati-Miami clash marks the first meeting of Paul Brown and Don Shula, one of his several former charges now coaching in the NFL. Shula, the Miami coach, came into the pros for Brown in Cleveland in the early 1950s. Since then, Brown moved to Cincinnati as head coach.

The Dolphins, who won 17 games enroute to the Super Bowl last season, weren't so perfect this year with two losses in 14 regular-season starts.

Bob Griese runs the Miami show with a trio of powerhouse runners — Larry Csonka (a 1,000-yarder for the third straight year), Mercury Morris and Jim Kiick.

The Dolphins will be making their fourth straight post-season appearance. Playoffs are no novelty for Brown, either. He got into plenty at Cleveland and this year, moved his Bengals to the AFC Central title.

Los Angeles, champions of the NFC West, is in the playoffs for the first time since 1969. Dallas, champion of the NFC East, has made playoff status for the eighth straight season.

Notre Dame's players hit the books all week ... and then gave Denver a lesson in basketball.

"We had an average of six guys out studying each day," said Notre Dame Coach Dick Phelps, whose team certainly didn't look too studious putting the Pioneers away 99-59 Thursday night.

"They are certainly one of the top teams in the nation," said Denver Coach Al Harden. "Notre Dame is a fine ballclub and deserves its No. 3 ranking. There's no way possible to match up against the Fighting Irish.

Freshman Adrian Dantley made things happen for the third-rated Irish, scoring 21 points. He helped get his mates together, in the modern terminology.

In other action involving the ranked teams, No. 4 North Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 83-78 and Providence smashed William and Mary 105-75.

With Dantley the big scorer, Notre Dame soared to a 52-30 lead at the half. Before the lopsided contest was over, all of Notre Dame's players saw action. However, nobody played more than 24 minutes.

John Shumate added 16 points to the Notre Dame offense before sitting down. The Fighting Irish, not incidentally, connected on 55 per cent of their field goal attempts in winning their sixth straight game. Denver's John Johnson led all scorers with 23 points.

Bobby Jones scored 20 points and collected 13 rebounds to lead North Carolina over Virginia Tech. The disappointing Gobblers, last year's winner of the National Invitation Tournament, dropped their third game in five starts.

The Tar Heels lost part of a 10-point lead in the late going, but Jones and Darrell Elston helped hold off the Gobblers. Elston wound up with 18 points. Charlie Thomas led the losers with 19.

Kevin Stacom and Barnes combined

for 34 points to lead Providence to an easy victory over William and Mary.

The Friars shot 63 percent from the floor with Stacom's 18 points leading all scorers. In addition to his 16 points, Barnes pulled in 18 rebounds. Matt Courage led William and Mary with 15 points.

John Ryan had 22 assists to pace Fairfield to an 84-58 victory over Villanova; Craig Lynch scored 16 points and Bruce Grimm 15 in Furman's 69-62 beating of Davidson; Nebraska trimmed Northern Iowa 73-55 behind Ron Taylor's 21 points and 17 rebounds and Ira Terrell's 29 points sparked SMU over Cal State-Fullerton 93-69.

Chicago Loyola weathered foul trouble and a mild Wichita State rally to beat the Shockers 82-70; Mike Parker scored 10 points in the last five minutes to pace Toledo over St. Mary's of California 82-63; Charles Bailey scored a school-record 45 points in Fresno State's 96-95 double overtime victory over North Texas and Athletics in Action held off a second-half surge by Brigham Young to beat the Cougars 60-56.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Good stellar influences favor a new approach to difficult problems, consolidation of gains made in the past. Start looking now—for improved returns.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Admonitions for this day: Don't be so overly cautious that you lose out on advantages and don't rely on help from others. This will be a period when your own grit must see you through.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Dedication to obligations will pay off—especially when you have resisted the temptation to veer off, let things go. Inventiveness, originality stimulated.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): A new approach may be necessary in some areas, in order to cope with unusual circumstances but day, on the whole, should prove stimulating, satisfying.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Follow your best judgment now. Even if you should make mistakes, they're YOURS—and better than those caused by another's well-intentioned but erroneous advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): An excellent outlook! Day's activities should prove even more successful than anticipated; could even act as a springboard to further progress.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): You have an exceptionally good planetary set-up now but must toe the line, nevertheless, to avoid friction with those who are not in so comfortable a spot.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): A special way of saying the right thing at the right time will be rewarding. Be cognizant of "tricky" situations and handle as required.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Your perceptions may need some keening now. Be sure to take all factors into account when sizing up unexpected circumstances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Single-handedly you can institute improvements in many areas, tie up loose ends and plan new undertakings, but minor matters may tend to distract. Don't let them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Especially favored now: personal relationships, avocational interests, travel plans and outdoor pursuits. A good day!

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Mixed influences. You can hold your own through thoughtful management plus a dash of imagination. Take possible changes of plan in stride.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a high order of intelligence; are studious and ambitious. Your goals in life are usually lofty ones and you generally attain them in out-of-the-ordinary fashion. You are extremely methodical and, when instructions are given to you, you carry them out to the letter. Your integrity and trustworthiness are outstanding. You like people but, paradoxically, have a streak of secretiveness and suspicion in your nature which keeps you from many friendships you might otherwise enjoy. Try to curb these traits. Fields in which you could carve an eminent career: education, politics, salesmanship, finance, science, music, writing. Birthdate of: Deems Taylor, composer, music critic.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — We all laughed at "All In The Family" when Edith went through menopause and Mike was impotent.

There was a touch of pathos to the show about Gloria's miscarriage. But the number one hit show on CBS is after all a comedy and that episode had its moments of hilarity.

But can they pull it off this Saturday when Edith discovers a lump in her breast and thinks it's cancer? And a Christmas show on top of that.

I think they do, with an outrageous juxtaposition of visual humor and clowning and Edith's worries over the lump. She worries not only that it might be malignant but that Archie will find out and if he does that he will view her differently.

The show manages to be touching, humorous and informative. Cancer is, of course, no laughing matter and there are no sick jokes here. All the references to cancer are handled tastefully and straightforward.

That "All In The Family" is at the top of the ratings, is, I believe, in no small way due to the ability of the producers to find a manageable and humorous way to handle so-called controversial subjects.

This Saturday's show resulted from a suggestion by Austin and Irma Kalish, who wrote the teleplay with Don Nicholl, the series' script consultant.

"This is the kind of challenge that is enormously exciting to us," said Norman Lear, the executive producer. "The problem is universal.

There isn't anything in life in my opinion that can't be treated from the side of the telescope that is comedic."

Worked into this story is something that happened during a rehearsal of the show about seven months ago. Someone brought in some novelty store false noses and eyeglasses and the cast clown around with them.

The idea of using the false noses was tucked away until the cancer show. Everyone clowns with the noses and Edith uses the moment to relieve her anxieties of discovering the lump.

The show also imparts information. Edith discovers the lump herself and goes immediately to a doctor. She worries that Archie will act differently toward her if she has a breast operation. Her neighbor, Irene Lorenzo tells her that she had a similar operation six years before and her husband is still loving and attentive.

I don't want to give away the show, but you can figure out for yourself that it turns out well. Archie, true to character, is alternately frightened, relieved and peeved.

Rio de Janerio is no longer the capital of Brazil. That is now Brasilia, located in the east-central part of the country with a population of 120,000.

Mecca, the birthplace of Mohammed and hence the holy city for Moslems, is in Saudi Arabia.

Ohio Dealers Rap Gasoline Limits

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Some Ohio gasoline dealers say they will defy President Nixon's request to voluntarily close on Sundays and pump only 10 gallons of fuel for each customer.

The service station managers said Thursday they have been carrying too much of the energy crisis burden and they won't accept it any longer.

A survey of 16 stations along interstate routes in Columbus revealed that almost all plan to reopen on Sunday after being closed the past weekends.

"I think service station dealers have just about had it up to their neck," said Jerry Innes, president of the Central Ohio Gasoline Dealers Association.

"I really don't think they're going to stand for it," Innes said.

"All they'll (motorists) do is jump from station to station," said James Cresente, executive director of the Northern Ohio Petroleum Retailers Association.

"Voluntary doesn't work in this business."

"How can they (comply)?" Cresente said. "Suppose you're a good customer and you say, 'All right, I'll just come back this afternoon and buy another 10 gallons.' What can you tell him?"

The president of the Greater Cincinnati Gasoline Dealers Association, Mike Kunnen, said a purchase limit would "hurt all of us. Those people who want gas will just go to the next service station and get more."

Nicholas Lipko, a Columbus service station manager, said he will not limit purchases.

"They'll just drive out of my station and across the street," he said. "That's not the way to treat your customers. You're here to build up a business, not to lose it."

Innes said the limit will not work on a voluntary basis.

"Even if they make it compulsory, they're just about going to have to have someone standing by the pumps," Innes said.

In Cleveland, a spokesman for Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, which dominates gasoline sales in the state, declined comment on whether company-owned stations will comply with the limit.

Meanwhile, a large majority of service stations along Interstate 70 near Columbus said they will open Sundays, though they've closed in past weeks because of President Nixon's request.

Of 16 stations along the section checked, four are company owned and said they will close under orders.

Of the other 12, 11 said they will be open Sunday.

"As long as it's voluntary, I'll volunteer to stay open," said Ben Tobin, one of the station managers. He

Boyle To Face Murder Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle faces arraignment in Pennsylvania on state murder charges before beginning a three-year federal prison sentence.

Boyle was under federal court orders to be tentatively arraigned today in Washington, Pa., on a charge of murdering union rival Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his family on Dec. 31, 1969.

Justice Department officials said that Boyle would be flown to the arraignment and then taken directly to the federal medical detention facility in Springfield, Mo.

said he closed the first two Sundays after the President's request, but opened last Sunday.

Several of the station managers said their stations are hard hit by the Sunday closings.

They said a station on an interstate must rely more on gasoline sales than in-town stations, because they have little repair work. Interstate stations also don't get the Saturday and Monday business the urban stations do, they said.
